16 JANUARY 2025

On 11 January 2025, the Department of Accountancy organized an engaging Team-Building and Leadership Skill Training Fun Day at Hong Kong Disneyland for students enrolled in the Master of Science in Professional Accounting and Corporate Governance (MScPACG) and the Master of Arts in International Accounting (MAIA) programmes.

The day began with a warm welcome at the Disneyland Hotel, where students participated in ice-breaking activities, followed by a delightful lunch with their programme leaders at the hotel.

The highlight of the day was a series of exhilarating games led by professional coaches from the Hong Kong Disneyland Recreation Team. These games were designed to enhance both team-building skills and leadership qualities among the participants. Each game encouraged collaboration, communication, and strategic thinking and enabled students to work together in dynamic and engaging contexts.

As participants navigated through various challenges, they were encouraged to step into leadership roles, which enabled them to practice their decision-making and group coordination. These activities were designed so the participants could take time to pause and reflect on their experiences, which facilitated meaningful discussions. This reflective component allowed students to share insights on the lessons learned and their personal growth, further enriching the overall experience. By the end of the day the participants had not only developed essential skills but also forged deeper connections with their peers, creating a supportive environment that emphasized the value of teamwork and leadership.

After the training sessions, the students left the Disneyland Hotel to enjoy a complimentary visit to Hong Kong Disneyland Park, where they had time to explore and experience the park's attractions. This engaging event provided students with valuable leadership training and a unique opportunity to bond and create lasting memories with their peers and faculty. The Department of Accountancy looks forward to hosting further similar events in which training is combined with enjoyable and leisurely experiences.
