

Professional Seminar: Session Four, “Career as a Financial Analyst (Opportunities Other than Accounting Firms),” on 13 April 2019

The AC was pleased to invite one of its alumni, Mr. Derek Chan, Investment Analyst at Sumitomo Mitsui Asset Management (Hong Kong) Limited, to conduct a talk related to the role of a financial analyst on 13 April 2019 in LT-18, Yeung Kin Man Academic Building.

Approximately 200 students and alumni attended the seminar. The event started with an introduction to the work of a financial analyst, followed by talks providing briefings on the nature of the job on both the sell side (investment banks) and the buy side (asset management firms) and comparing the approaches to analysis on the two sides. Finally, Mr. Derek Chan talked about careers in commercial banking and investment banking.

The seminar was a great success. All of the students and alumni who attended gained invaluable knowledge of career opportunities within and outside of accounting firms, as well as deeper insights into the various choices of career in the business world. We sincerely hope that more successful alumni will be willing to deliver talks to our students and engage in fruitful sharing with attendees in the future.
