

Departmental Retreat on 1 December 2021

With a two-year suspension of off-campus large-scale departmental gatherings due to Covid-19, everyone has looked forward to their return. On 1 December 2021, the Department of Accountancy successfully organized the Departmental Retreat cum departmental meeting at the New World Millennium Hotel, Tsim Sha Tsui. Our Acting Head, Professor Yangyang Chen, presented the Opening Remarks and hosted the departmental meeting. We were also pleased to have our Acting Dean (CB) and former Department Head, Professor Jeong-Bon Kim, give a short talk on his prospective plan.

During the four-hour retreat, all of the faculty, teaching staff, graduate teaching assistants and general office staff gathered in a casual and relaxed atmosphere to share their teaching and research philosophy and aspirations. The Department was also deeply grateful for everyone's active involvement in the breakout group discussions about enhancing our undergraduate curriculum. Every time our faculty has participated in the retreat, innovative and insightful ideas have been developed, and this time was no exception.

Our retreat was followed by a joyful Christmas and a happy New Year. We hope that the Covid situation will continue to improve and that all of our teaching and research initiatives will launch and reach new heights!
