

Share the Joy of Graduation

Graduation is an important milestone in a student's life. After years of working hard at CityU, the 224 AC undergraduates and 171 AC postgraduates who completed their studies last year couldn't have been happier than they were at the moment of the convocation on 13th November 2009. The grinning faces of these graduates were strong testament to their eagerness to join society and contribute what they have learnt at CityU. The Department's staff members were also on hand to share in the graduates' joy.

The accounting training that graduates of the Department have obtained equips them with the necessary soft skills and technical knowledge needed to work closely with others while solving problems independently. In recent years, more than 98 per cent of our graduates have received job offers within six months of graduation, with around 85% of them securing positions in auditing and taxation. We would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the new AC graduates and wish them success in their career development!

Our graduates are fully trained to embark on a career in the challenging business world

Tips from Experts who Aided Students' Career Development in China

In line with its booming economy, and to maintain its rapid development, China has great demand for professional accountants. On 16th September 2009, two representatives of KPMG Huazhen delivered a seminar entitled "Career opportunities and challenges for our graduates – the experience in China". This informative seminar familiarised AC students with the challenges of and opportunities for working as a practising accountant in China.

More than 70 students attended the seminar, which was presented by Ms Maggie Lee, an audit partner at KPMG, and Mr Philip Li, a senior manager at the firm. They gave the students their insights about the auditing profession in China, and advised the students on how to prepare themselves to work there.

Workshop Prepares Students for Internships

Every year, the Department cooperates with different accounting firms to provide students with internship opportunities that can facilitate their career development. We also organise different kinds of workshops to equip students for their placements in large corporations.

Pre-Internship Development Workshop

On the 19th and 20th of December, the Department organised a pre-departure internship workshop for interns who are going to work locally or in Singapore. This workshop provided them with basic audit knowledge, thus enabling them to better cope with the competitive working environment of international accounting firms such as Grant Thornton, RSM and the local Big 4.

The workshop was run by Mr Kit Wong, a CityU alumnus who works as a trainer in a local Big 4 firm. In addition to explaining what an audit is and providing basic training in auditing procedures, evidence and methods, Kit also discussed office etiquette and different organisational cultures with the students and provided them with tips to improve their communications skills. This two-day training workshop served as a baseline for students, as it provided them with some of the most vital survival skills they will need to thrive in an international accounting firm.

Sharing Session with Previous Interns

In addition to preparation workshops presented by accounting professionals, previous interns were also invited to share first-hand information regarding their internship experience with upcoming interns. A dozen interns who had taken part in internships in 2009 gathered on the morning of 19th December to discuss their life and working experiences with future interns.

Ken Chan, a year-3 accounting student who went to Singapore on an RSM internship in 2009, was eager to share his experiences there with his fellow schoolmates. Ken gave them some essential tips on dress codes, time management and communication skills. He said he thought his internship, which provided intensive on-the-job training, had enabled him to learn a lot, although the workload in the accounting field is heavy.

With the support of the Department and the experience of previous interns, students were made aware of the opportunities and challenges that lie in front of them, thus equipping them to make the most of the internship experience.

Information Day

Information Day is one of the most important annual events for the Department, as it represents a vital opportunity to communicate with prospective students who have a keen interest in accounting.

Undergraduate Studies Information Day

Held on 17th October, the 2009 Information Day provided the prospective undergraduate students with the latest education information. Student ambassadors from the Department met with senior high school students to discuss their experiences of studying at CityU, and shared their memorable moments of life in the Department. The Department's promotional booth received more than 3000 visitors over the course of the day.

In addition, more than 800 prospective applicants attended four briefing sessions organised by the Department to obtain first-hand information on our three undergraduate programmes.

The AC booth was very popular with students, with our student ambassadors busy answering questions all day

15th China International Education Exhibition Tour (CIEET)

Hosted since 1999, the China International Education Exhibition Tour (CIEET) is recognised as the most influential international education event in China. CityU, as a recognised university in mainland China, participates in the CIEET event every year to promote its undergraduate and postgraduate programmes. In March 2010, the Department, along with its fellow departments, will tour Beijing, Chongqing, Shanghai, Qingdao and Guangzhou, and present briefing sessions to introduce CityU's accounting programmes and recruit elite students from the mainland. Our academic staff will also be stationed locally to answers enquiries from these prospective students directly.

Out of Classroom Activities

Students Express Gratitude for Mentors' Guidance

On 3rd December 2009, a special Thanksgiving Dinner was organised to demonstrate appreciation for the contributions made by the mentors who took part in last year's Executive Mentoring Scheme (EMS). The dinner also served as an opportunity for forthcoming mentees to meet and chat with their mentors, and to get ready to fully participate in this fruitful programme.

The atmosphere at the dinner was relaxed, and the mentors and mentees had a good time.

The EMS is one of the many ongoing initiatives of the Department. This popular year-long scheme, which has now been running for four years, offers students the opportunity to engage in comprehensive mentoring activities with practising accounting professionals. Student mentees are shortlisted, interviewed and selected carefully to ensure they have the desired attitude and level of commitment, whilst all mentors are experienced accounting elites with extensive mentoring experience.

Participation in the EMS is a great way to learn, network and gain a real-world perspective

The magic match between mentor and mentee really does help the latter to grow professionally. Most of the 2009 mentors and graduating mentees attended the Thanksgiving Dinner, during which they celebrated the year's accomplishments. At the same time, the forthcoming mentees had the opportunity to communicate actively with their future mentors and obtain the latest industry updates.

Yi Diandian (right) and her mentor Season Cheng (center) with another mentee

Yi Diandian, a year-2 BBAAC student, considers the year-long experience with her mentor to have been a fruitful one. "My mentor Season Cheng, a Big 4 practitioner, has shared many memorable moments with me. We have visited the Big 4 office; we have jointly organised karaoke activities with other mentors; and we have even gone cruising with other mentors on a yacht. These are all very memorable events for me, and Season is now part of my circle", said Diandian.

Cheryl Tai, Season's new mentee in the 2010 EMS, cannot wait to kick-off the mentoring scheme: "People who have participated in the scheme have all recommended that I take part, and I have realised that this really is a golden opportunity for me to establish a network with practising accountants. Not only will these mentors share some of their insights about the industry with us, but they will also act as guardians who will help us to grow professionally in our careers and develop better personalities."

We stayed at the National Taiwan University, which has six campuses in the greater Taipei region and additional campuses in Nantou County.

We spent most of our time in this classroom. Note that the chairs are all made of wood, which is rare in Hong Kong.

AUO, the world's top-3 LCD panel manufacturer.

Delta Electronics is one of the Asian Fab 50 companies; it manufactures power supplies and fans.

The gym at Quanta, keeping staff fit!

We listened carefully. Of course, the two-week course counts for three credits, so everyone had to work hard!

PowerPoint was easy for us, as we did a lot of presentations at CityU.

The ex-tallest building in the world, just surpassed by the Burj Khalifa in Dubai.

Night markets are a food lover's paradise (aka weight/fat-building factories).

The renowned 24-hour book store chain in Taiwan. Surely a must-go for us: as you know, we all love reading :P.

Delicious ice cream, the ladies' favourite.

Must-go for first-time Taipei visitors – Liberty Square.

Study at NTU

How big is the National Taiwan University campus?

It occupies 1% of Taiwan's total land area.

How long did the trip last?

15 days, from 17-31 May.

How many people went to Taiwan?

8 handsome boys and 22 beautiful girls.

Firms Visited

Which firms did you visit?

AUO, Delta, Ernest & Young, HTC and Quanta.

Did HTC give everyone a free smartphone?

... We wish! But never mind, every UGC student at CityU can have a free notebook during the loan period anyway.

Exploring Taipei

How tall is the Taipei 101?

509 m.

How many kilograms did you gain on the trip?

... Highly confidential!

Fun Time

Did anything make you unhappy during the trip?

Yup ... the study tour was too short ... we miss Taipei!!

How much did the trip cost?

A bargain price, as it was subsidised by the university.

Dr Shieh was just like a big kid. He was always fun and nice.

Students and teachers from NTU. The people in Taipei all treated us so nicely. We miss them very much.

Students and professor from NTU.

Prof. John to "Retire" after 19 years at CityU

By Professor John K. Courtis

I started at City University of Hong Kong on 1 September 1991 with the intention of working here for nine months. In August 2010, 19 years later, I will commence "retirement" on the Gold Coast in Australia. The decision to come here was one of the most satisfying I have made in my life. When CityU was a Polytechnic I served on 16 committees and over the years obtained a range of invaluable administrative, teaching and research experiences.

Students have changed in a number of ways – they are now more sophisticated, articulate, focused, ambitious, worldly, confident, industrious and demanding. The composition of teaching staff has undergone much turnover and the composition of the student population reflects increasing internationalism. These changes are to be expected in the evolution of an institution with the kind of aspirations expressed by CityU. Despite all the changes that have occurred, the Department of Accountancy retains its family ethos, with a caring attitude towards whole person development. This Department can be proud of the empowerment of its students and the professional work ethic imparted on them over their three year stay with us.

Entering a new educational process is an exhilarating time for an undergraduate. I can still remember the excitement I felt when I bought my first university textbook in 1962, a year when some of your parents had just been born. While the workload of a professionally-oriented degree is heavy at times, that is a good thing. Accountants are busy and important people and learning how to cope with assignment and examination deadlines and the high expectations of others is excellent preparation for the future.

Accountants bring order into business by ensuring that a permanent and verifiably accurate record of economic transactions is maintained. Accountants and accounting are essential elements of the governance process that confers credibility to the financial reporting that is required by law. Accountants assist managers, clients and the public to interpret increasingly larger volumes of technical information.

University education, however, should not be all work. Play and social interaction are important aspects of the educational process. Make new friends and talk to them often, eat healthy food together, party hard, play sport, maintain or develop non-academic interests, join clubs, become involved in current affairs, read and talk in English, develop strong ethical principles, travel overseas as often as possible, and think always like a professional. Take one day at a time, but develop career goals as soon as possible when commencing university studies to add interest and commitment to your studies – you never know what clients might expect from you. Develop an e-portfolio from day one.

Accounting education is changing. Preparation and organization of financial information is essential but is not the end in itself. Accountants are actively involved in communicating the economic meaning behind the numbers and how these numbers can be used to help make rational business and investment decisions. Accounting and auditing standards are becoming more internationalized. The knowledge obtained by studying accounting and auditing is an overseas passport (or ticket), because that knowledge and its application are transferable often beyond national jurisdictions. What this means is that at the end of your degree and three years of relevant work experience you will be able to consider accounting, finance and managerial positions anywhere in the world, for accounting is a portable discipline. Worldwide job opportunities and the chance to meet and work with interesting people and companies are limited only by your own imagination and aspirations.

Like the medical and other professions, there is a growing need for greater specialization in accountancy. A first undergraduate degree should be viewed as the start of life-long education. After graduation and a few years of essential on-the-job experience it will be time to consider a masters degree that will provide specialization in specific areas. There are many exciting new fields such as accounting for water resources, reporting implications of financial and non-financial issues arising from emissions trading schemes and carbon credits, distressed company restructuring and valuation, healthcare, matrimonial litigation, charities, international taxation modeling, hospitality, forensic accounting, corporate governance, risk management, and compliance reporting, to name a few examples. Not all universities have caught up with these changes so you will need to explore postgraduate study opportunities overseas as well as locally.

Climatic changes occurring worldwide produce increasingly unpredictable and serious outcomes. The world is changing too in other ways and for the remainder of your lives you will be exposed to these changes in one way or another. Changes will affect clients and their businesses here and abroad. Hybrid financial instruments, off-balance sheet items, joint ventures, technology, and international business transactions, as examples, will require carefully considered accounting treatment. You will experience situations where accounting standards are incomplete or lag behind economic reality and some situations where there are no "the" answers, only defensible responses appropriate for current circumstances. It is important therefore to examine these situations based on economic substance rather than on legal form. A sound understanding of the underlying concepts and their applications in specific situations are valuable tools for a good accountant and will help resolve client difficulties and provide guidance.

No matter what else you accomplish in your university studies, it is crucial that you develop the skill of analytical thinking. Try too to improve your verbal and written communication skills. Thinking and communication are the two essential abilities that will allow you to excel in your professional careers and add net worth to society, which is a basic reason why you are planning to become a professional accountant. Be proud, be independent, be confident, be objective and fair, be thorough, be scrupulously honest, and have tons and tons of fun! (Cut out these few paragraphs, paste them into your notebook, and read them often).

My best wishes to you all and my sincere thanks to past and present students and colleagues for giving me an academic lifetime of purpose and fulfillment.

Overseas Experience Makes University Life Memorable

Ernest Ip at Singapore's famous Esplanade

Ernest and a colleague in Singapore

University life is not just about studying. Two AC students believe that it is their overseas experience that has really made their university life memorable, as it has not only enriched their learning experience, but also given them memories that will last forever.

With the support of the Department, Ernest Ip, a year-3 Accountancy and Law undergraduate, managed to secure an internship in Singapore in the summer of

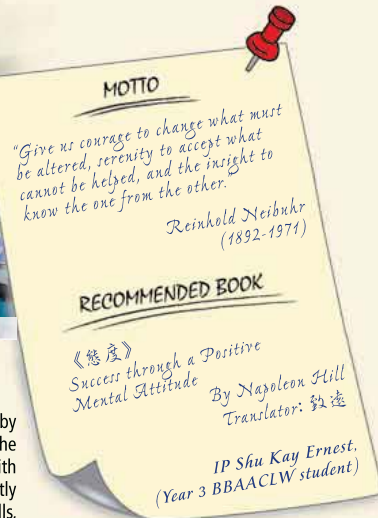

Kevin and his friends in Germany, taken at the age of eight 2009. "I got hands-on practice in auditing by working in Foo Kon Tan Grant Thornton", he said. "The intern experience provided me with invaluable experience that has significantly improved my Putonghua and English skills, as well as my time and money management skills." He said that he really appreciates the strong networking opportunities with industry that CityU offers.

Kevin Yuen, a year-3 undergraduate from Germany, is currently studying Accountancy and Management Information Systems. Although he was born and raised in Germany, Kevin wants to work in China, as he has recognised the growing economic power of the "Sleeping Dragon". To fulfil this ambition, he decided to study in Hong Kong.

Studying overseas seems like it would be lonely, which is why Kevin was astounded by how quickly he adapted to CityU. He believes the friendly environment of the Department helped him a lot. "The professors and the teaching staff are very nice and approachable, which is an essential factor in my smooth transition from Germany to Hong Kong education", Kevin said.

Their overseas experience has enabled both of these students to establish friendships with people from all over the world. "Working in Singapore was a valuable experience for me, as I have made friends with the locals", said Ernest, noting that he cherishes the opportunity he was given. Kevin has also made many local friends at CityU. He dubbed CityU "a big family", where friendly people gather, learn and grow.

Kevin received his secondary education in Germany, but decided to further his education at CityU

New Scholars join the AC Powerhouse

The Department made a few significant appointments in 2009, and we would like to extend our warmest welcome to our new Department Head, Professor KIM Jeong Bon, and our new Chair Professor, Professor SRINIDHI Bin.

Professor Kim has been appointed Chair Professor of Accountancy and, concurrently, Head of the Department of Accountancy. Professor Kim, who assumed duty on 1 June 2009, received his PhD from Temple University, US. He served as Professor of Accountancy and the Canada Research Chair in Corporate Governance and Financial Reporting at the John Molson School of Business, Concordia University, Canada. Prior to that, Professor Kim worked for the Hong Kong Polytechnic University for more than 12 years. He is Vice President-at-large of the International Association of Accounting Education and Research (IAAER). Professor Kim has published numerous articles in leading scholarly journals, including The Accounting Review and Journal of Finance Economics, and has served on the editorial boards of leading accounting journals, including Contemporary Accounting Research and Auditing: A Journal of Practice and Theory. Professor Srinidhi is a well-known academic scholar, with an impressive publication record in the areas of Management Accounting, Operations and Quality Management, Auditing and Capital Markets. He also serves on the editorial boards of leading accounting journals. These two veteran accounting scholars have joined hands to lead the Department and to facilitate its continued growth.

Two new assistant professors have also been appointed, Dr John Edward NOWLAND and Dr ZHANG Yue. All of these appointments have contributed to the strength of the Department's teaching and research team, thus allowing us to continue to bring quality education and excellent applied research to the University and to Hong Kong.

Prof Kim, Head of the Department of Accountancy

Prof Srinidhi is a world-renowned researcher in the field of Corporate Governance and Auditing

John has two children, a son who is 5 years old and a daughter who is 2 years old

Zhang Yue received her PhD degree in Accounting from the University of Texas at Dallas
