

CALL FOR PAPERS

Conference on Renminbi and the Global Economy

May 23-24, 2013, City University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Organized by City University of Hong Kong, Department of Economics and Finance, and Research Center for International Economics, and
Bank of Finland Institute for Economies in Transition (BOFIT)

China's recent policies on promoting the international use of its currency, the renminbi, have created ripple effects in the world economy. The conference invites researchers to present their original works on contemporary issues related to the Chinese renminbi and the global economy.

Possible topics include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following:

- China's exchange rate policy and global imbalances
- China and international monetary architecture
- The international roles of the renminbi – current status and future prospects
- Policies on internationalizing renminbi
- Renminbi internationalization and its implications for China, the global economy, financial market integration, and financial stability

We would like to strike a good balance between academic rigor and practical relevance, and offer alternative viewpoints on the international roles of the renminbi in the global economy.

Those interested in presenting at the conference should send a completed paper or a two-page detailed abstract in WORD or PDF format via email to CRGE2013@cityu.edu.hk by February 4, 2013.

Authors of accepted papers will be notified by March 15, 2013. Final versions of the accepted papers will be posted on the conference website.

Presenters may apply for financial support to cover economy class airfare and local accommodation expenses.
