

Servant Leadership Training Program Sharing by Murphy Siu

Over the past few years, I joined the “Servant Leadership Training Program” in the university. By joining the program, I enriched my school life by providing community service with my teammate.

Being the junior member in the first year, I did the home visit with my partner. We also wrote a “Life Story Book” for the elderly, the book recorded the elderly’s life experiences. Besides, our team also held a mass event for the elderly. Designing the mass event with my team members, I learned a lot about event planning, such as venue selection, activities design. This valuable experience gave me a sense of accomplishment when I saw the elderly having fun at our event.

“Servant Leadership Training Program” not only giving me a chance to serve but also an opportunity to enhance my personal growth.

In the second year, I was being promoted to be the Senior Servant Leader in our team. Being the senior servant leader, I was responsible for the program's preparation work, such as contacting the elderly and inviting them to join our program, promoting the program to recruit new members. After that, my partner and I were in charge of two groups of juniors. We supervised their home visit and contact with the elderly and assigned the event planning process.

The most unforgettable experience is holding a mass event under the Covid-19 pandemic. Our team faced difficulties in the event planning process. I learned to be flexible and adapt to changes quickly under the pandemic. At last, we organized a mass event by using zoom with the elderly. We brought the new experiences to the elderly and tried our best to provide community service under the Covid-19 pandemic.

In the third year, I was being promoted to be the Servant Leader Manager. My partner and I were in charge of two seniors and three groups of juniors. Being the team manager, we could enhance our managing and coaching skills as we need to be a coach and provide guidance to the seniors. By coaching with the members, I improved my interpersonal skill.

To conclude, joining the “Servant Leadership Training Program” offered me valuable opportunities to serve the community and train up my leadership skill.
